Needs No Reserves

LBJ Has Filled All Requests For Troops

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Saturday his desk is clear of all requests for more troops in Viet Nam. And he said he thinks he can meet additional requests expected next summer "without any great strain on our forces."

This was Johnson's way of stating, at a well-attended news conference in his oval office, that he sees no need now to consider mobilizing Reserve or National Guard units.

Johnson expressed his satisfaction with the battle plans and evaluations of Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the American commander in Viet Nam, but declined to predict any easy victory.

Won't Be Easy
"It is not going to be easy and it is not going to be short," said Johnson. "It is going to be difficult and it is going to require sacrifices."

The President, who said he has no quarrel with Congress over recent public debate on Viet Nam policy, indicated also he does not expect to ask for a wartime tax increase or wage-price controls in the foreseeable future.

Johnson said the administration has not made any studies or recommendations on a possible tax hike.

"I would not want to preclude them," he added, but said with respect to fear of potential inflation, "we don't want to put the brakes on too fast."

In response to questions about grumbling by organized labor about the administration's wage-price guidelines designed to fight inflation, the President said:

May Legislate
"We think we can work it out. If we can't we will recommend whatever legislation we may think is desirable."

He expressed hope that "employers and business people will forgo any price increases, just as I have asked labor to forego any (wage) increases above their productivity gains."

As for the sometimes clamorous debate in Congress and public hearings on Viet Nam policy by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Johnson said he thinks all such developments "will bring about a unity that will serve us in good stead in the days ahead."

One minority group in Congress has questioned Johnson's claim that a 1964 resolution, enacted after an attack on American warships in the Gulf of Tonkin, gives him the authority to carry out the measures already taken in Viet Nam.

Dispute Idea
Though using conciliatory words, Johnson disputed this idea and said he feels certain Congress members understood the import of the resolution when they voted it.

In any event, he said, "if the resolution is repealed I think that I could still carry out our commitments there" — in Viet Nam.

He said he has such powers as commander in chief and by virtue of treaty commitments in Southeast Asia.

Johnson announced he is appointing Andrew F. Brimmer, 39, now assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs, to a vacancy on the seven-man board of governors of the Federal Reserve Board.

Since the reserve board's December decision to tighten credit as an anti-inflation measure came on a 4-3 vote—and drew fire from Johnson — the appointment had been awaited with great interest.

He called those "objectives that any person in this country can embrace."

The President made it clear he wants no formal declaration of war in Viet Nam. And, asked if he feels "hawk" sentiment expressed by advocates of an expanded war is increasing, he said:

50 Marines Beat Back 100 Cong

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Fifty U.S. Marines beat off an attack Saturday by Viet Cong who outnumbered them about 2-1. The fight, south of Chu Lai, reflected a revived militancy among guerrillas who recently had avoided combat.

The Communist company shelled the Marines with mortars and recoilless rifles and then clawed through all but the last strand of a triple line of barbed wire ringing their camp, 340 miles northeast of Saigon.

The Americans, hurling the enemy back, killed 18. They captured one, who said he was a stretcher bearer. A spokesman said Marine casualties were light.

Take Initiative
The Viet Cong took the initiative in three of a half-dozen other clashes, mostly minor, reported by briefing officers. These ranged from Phu Bai in the north to the Mekong River delta in the south.

B52 jets of the U.S. Strategic Air Command staged another saturation bombing in Zone D which they have raided off and on since last summer. They swarmed in from Guam and churned up a jungle area 30 miles northeast of Saigon. A spokesman said they hit "suspected Viet Cong targets."

Cloudy weather hampered U.S. pilots over North Viet Nam for the fourth straight day. Air Force and Navy pilots depended strictly on radar in attacks Friday. These were again concentrated in the area of Vinh, 140 miles north of the border. Among the targets was an ammunition depot five miles from Vinh.

Hit U.S. Jet
Viet Cong operating just south of the border crippled a U.S. Marine F4B Phantom jet with ground fire and its two-man crew bailed out over the South China Sea about 10 miles from shore. Waves were running six feet high, but both were rescued by the U.S. destroyer escort Falgout.

The fliers are Lt. John R. Coleman, 25, Bellmore, N.Y., and Lt. Bob Pappas, 26, East St. Louis, Ill.

Among highlights of scattered ground operations:
The Viet Cong lobbed 16 mortar shells at a U.S. artillery base at Phu Loi, 15 miles north of Saigon. American casualties were termed light.

Farther north, men of the 1st Brigade of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division found the bodies of 15 Viet Cong in a shallow, freshly dug grave. They were presumed to have been killed—135 previously found dead—in an abortive attack Wednesday on the brigade's command post near Tan Binh.

Near Cu Chi, 25 miles northwest of Saigon, an armored patrol of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division surprised a Viet Cong platoon trying to mine a bridge Friday. The patrol killed 15. The division's artillery accounted for 15 others caught in the open Saturday.

In the Boi Loi woods farther northwest, elements of the 1st Division took light casualties from a booby trap in disposing of a Viet Cong rice cache. Contact between the Viet Cong and the Americans, pressing ahead in Operation Mastiff, remained light.

What the Pentagon calls a "continued favorable enlistment trend" has already permitted a 10,500-man slash in the March draft call, originally set at 32,900 inductees. This will make the March call lowest since last August's 16,500.

But the department took pains to say the cutback does not reflect any change in plans to raise manpower by 113,000 to 3,093,000 before July 1.

Pentagon officials say January's total enlistment approach the 50,245 who signed with the military last September preceding big draft call increases forecast by President Johnson.

The Marines recruited 6,900, 165 per cent above the same period a year ago. The Air Force got 11,500, up 65 per cent, and the Navy took in 12,400, up 55 per cent.

"Recruiting is excellent," one official said. "We are having no trouble meeting quotas and in some cases going over."

Armed service recruiters in St. Louis say hundreds of young men have been clamoring to enlist — and many have been turned away because service quotas were filled.

These two factors probably are foremost in the enlistment surge.

The Selective Service recently eased its requirements to reach some men who previously failed to meet certain minimum physical or mental standards.

The draft serves as a prod for young men to join the service of their choice before they are taken by Selective Service — and draft calls have been high.

In 1965, draft calls ranged around 7,000 to 8,000 through March, jumped to 13,000 in April and moved into the upper 20,000s last fall.

AFRICAN WOMAN GIVES BIRTH TO QUINTUPLETS
EAST LONDON, South Africa (AP) — Quintuplets were born Saturday to the wife of a 31-year-old African coal yard worker. Although a month premature, the three boys and two girls were reported in good condition.

The father, Tafeni Gquzulu, 41, got the word at the coal yard of the East London power station. He grinned and tears glistened in his eyes. His bosses gave him the rest of the day off.

His wife, Ngesisi, about 37, was reported by officials at Frere Hospital to be under heavy sedation.

The parents were married by tribal custom 10 years ago. They have one other child, a 4-year-old boy. Mrs. Gquzulu gave birth to twins in 1958 but they died a year later.

Dr. J.G. Steyn, medical superintendent of Frere Hospital, said the quintuplets ranged in weight from 4 pounds, 2 ounces to 5 pounds, 2 ounces. He said Mrs. Gquzulu had not taken any fertility-stimulating drugs.

Apollo Test Launch Proves Successful

Big Step In Race For Moon

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The mightiest rocket ever launched by the United States, a towering Saturn 1B, successfully hurled an unmanned Apollo moonship over a punishing re-entry course Saturday and triggered an all-out drive to land American astronauts on the moon within two or three years.

The 40-minute maiden flight for both the rocket and Apollo ship was a resounding success and provided the first flight experience for much of the equipment which will be used for manned lunar landings.

A local man, Seaman Perry Roberts, son of Mrs. Jessica Roberts of 919 Grove St., was aboard the U.S.S. Boxer during recovery operations. He graduated from Jacksonville High School, attended MacMurray College and the University of Missouri. The U.S.S. Boxer is also scheduled to take part in the recovery of Gemini 8.

The spacecraft rocketed 310 miles into space and survived a trial by fire — a blazing dash back through the earth's atmosphere during which its heat shield protected it from scorching temperatures up to 5,000 degrees.

New Target
The 11,000-pound cabin section, the part in which future astronauts will ride starting late this year, separated and parachuted into the South Atlantic Ocean 5,300 miles southeast of Cape Kennedy, landing within 20 miles of the intended bullseye.

Within minutes helicopters were overhead and frogmen were in the water. The aircraft carrier Boxer came alongside about two hours after splashdown and picked up the craft.

"It was a completely successful flight and a major step toward our manned lunar landing goal," commented Dr. George Mueller, associate administrator for manned space flight, of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

1st Of Series
The launching was the first of a long series of Apollo shots whose target is to land Americans on the moon in this decade. If there are no problems, the historic adventure could be achieved on flight No. 12, as early as January, 1968.

Space agency officials admit this date is optimistic — but certainly within reach if all launchings go as smoothly as Saturday's inaugural journey.

Ironically, the huge rocket almost didn't get off the ground because of pressurization problems with the first-stage fuel tanks. At one point the countdown advanced to within four seconds of liftoff, only to be halted by an electronic device which sensed the trouble.

Technicians corrected the problem by adjusting a regulator in ground support equipment. The count was resumed at 15 minutes but was stopped when the trouble again developed. And the mission control center announced that the shot had been postponed for at least 48 hours.

No Delay After All
Ten minutes later, as newsmen were preparing to leave the Cape Kennedy press site and tourists and others were leaving observation points in the area, the control center reversed itself and announced that there was no postponement, that the equipment was checking out okay. The decision was made by Dr. Kurt Debus, director of the space center.

"I've never seen that happen before and I never want to see it happen again," says Mueller.

Given the go-ahead, the Saturn 1B performed flawlessly. The 22-story rocket generated 1.6 million pounds of booster thrust and 200,000 pounds of hydrogen — powered second — stage thrust as it thundered across a clear sky, spewing a tail of fire more than 300-feet long.

It pushed the 45,900-pound Apollo ship to a peak altitude and provided the initial push to drive it back toward earth. Two bursts of a spacecraft motor helped increase the re-entry speed to more than 18,000 miles an hour.

Mueller said the only deviation in the flight was a slightly lower than planned performance by the spacecraft motor, but that it was acceptable. The motor will be used to steer astronauts to the moon and back.

Guidance, control and other spacecraft systems operated smoothly as the vehicle made its plunge.

Uses 3 Parachutes
The cabin section separated and three 83-foot parachutes popped out at 12,000 feet to gently lower it into the sea near Ascension Island.

The Saturn 1B has a first stage similar to the earlier Saturn 1, but has slightly more power. The newer rocket gets its additional punch from the second stage with its big load of high-energy liquid hydrogen fuel.

Saturn 1 was capable of lifting 22,000 pounds into earth orbit. Saturn 1B will be able to lift 37,000 pounds — which is 10,000 pounds heavier than the heaviest payload ever orbited, the Soviet Union's Proton 1.

The Saturn 1B is forerunner of the massive Saturn 5, whose 7.5 million pounds of thrust will provide the initial boost for the moon trips.

Two more unmanned Saturn 1B launchings are scheduled in 1966, with three astronauts slated to ride an Apollo craft into earth orbit in November or December.

The first Saturn 5 is to have a test launching early next year, with additional 1B and 5 launchings planned during the year.

If there are no serious problems, NASA says the fourth Saturn 5 would have "manned lunar landing capability." That is presently scheduled for launching in January, 1968, well before the end of the decade goal set by the late President John F. Kennedy for placing Americans on the moon.

Less optimistic officials believe there will be normal development problems and it will be at least the seventh or eighth Saturn 5 before men can be safely committed to a lunar voyage. That would be in 1969 according to present plan.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The President of the U.N. Security Council reported Saturday that its members generally favor Viet Nam peace negotiations in an appropriate forum aimed at carrying out the Geneva agreements.

Japanese Ambassador Akira Matsui, presiding over the council this month, made the report in a letter handed in here and addressed to all the other council ambassadors. He asked Secretary-General U Thant to reproduce it as a council document.

11 Approve
Diplomatic sources said 11 of the 15 council members had approved the letter as a reflection of their general views. The information said the Soviet Union, Bulgaria, France and Mali had refused to approve it.

The United States, which asked the council Jan. 31 to take up the Viet Nam question, welcomed the letter as a satisfactory outcome of the meetings the council held Feb. 1 and 2 and the private consultations Matsui carried out after that.

The council put Viet Nam on its agenda Feb. 2 by a 9 to 2 vote, with the Soviet Union and Bulgaria opposed and France, Mali, Nigeria and Uganda abstaining. It also authorized Matsui to consult its members on what to do next.

In his letter, Matsui said he had tried to consult them individually and collectively and also conferred with Thant to get "his own views on the situation." The Japanese diplomat declared.

General Feeling
"I believe I could detect a certain degree of common feeling among many members of the council which might be summarized as follows:

"1. There is general grave concern and growing anxiety over the continuation of hostilities in Viet Nam and a strong desire for the early cessation of hostilities and a peaceful solution of the Viet Nam problem.

"2. There appears also to be a feeling that the termination of the conflict in Viet Nam should be sought through negotiations in an appropriate forum in order to work out the implementation of the Geneva accords."

The accords were reached in the Geneva conference on French Indochina in 1954 and 1962. The 1954 agreements on Viet Nam provided for a cease-fire in the French-Indochina war, the demilitarization of both North and South Viet Nam and free elections to unify the country.

A written report from the president is without precedent in Security Council history. Matsui said he decided to report in writing rather than at a council meeting because "some serious differences of views" had "given rise to a general feeling that it would be inappropriate for the council to hold further debate at this time."

The investigator said that the youth who admitted altering dozens of cards surrendered materials, including a vellum finish paste with which erased areas of a card were smoothed over, and a purple indelible pencil for substituting numbers which matched printing on the license cards.

The process of altering ages included substitution of the numbers indicating year of the licensee's birth, and two code numbers in his actual driver's license number.

Too Much Work
Porcario said, "We will make other checks. We intended to visit several places last night, but found too much work to do at the first place."

The 55 students cited were among 70 who were taken to the state driver's license examination station for questioning. During the raid on the tavern, a number of driver's license cards were torn into small pieces and dropped on the floor by students. Most of the pieces were recovered for examination.

The alteration method used on Illinois driver's license cards has been known to state investigators for a number of months. However, few fake cards were turned up in identification checks of young drinkers.

Some altered cards have been seized by Wisconsin state patrol officers and turned over to the Illinois secretary of state. Porcario said that the student who admitted altering cards told investigators he did it "when he needed cash, soliciting jobs for $3 or $5 or $8 if he could get that much."

A student was seized earlier by investigators and accused of altering cards for fellow students. Porcario declined to make the card doctor's name public, explaining, "He's getting married today, and I don't want to cause him more trouble than he already has."

Mettler originally went AWOL last October, authorities said, but was picked up and held at Ft. McPherson in Atlanta.

Police said the soldier apparently got off a bus in Athens as he was being sent back to his duty station at Ft. Jackson, S.C., and hid in the supermarket

Egg Prices Reflect Change In Fasting Rules

By SALLY RYAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Egg prices dropped this week. They were the first to feel the effect of relaxation of Roman Catholic Church dietary regulations. Dealers said the change might cut consumption of eggs.

Fish sales also may be cut, but not as much as if Roman Catholics could eat meat on Friday.

The fish industry, however, is preparing a promotion plan to get people to eat more fish.

One fish, canned red salmon, is listed as a best buy this week, along with broilers and turkeys. Beef roasts and steaks are advertised at special prices in some areas. But pork still is relatively high with a limited supply.

Prices of snap beans, limas, corn, peaches, tuna fish and catsup are higher. So is honey. Prices of canned pears and frozen peas are moving lower. Inspiring specials in the nation's markets.

Peanuts, peanut butter, onions and prunes also are plentiful.

Cabbage, carrots, celery, lettuce, peppers, squash, sweet potatoes and tomatoes offer good buys, along with avocados, apples and bananas.

BLUFFS STUDENTS TO SPONSOR BOOK FAIR IN MARCH

BLUFFS — A book fair will be sponsored by the students librarians Bluffs High School March 8 through March 10. Books may be purchased during school hours and in the evening on March 10, and will be on display in the projector room in the grade school building.

Proceeds will be used for the purchase of equipment for the school library. Mrs. June Moore is chairman. Various committees were appointed by the student librarian president, Patty Coughlin.

The book fair display will include attractive new books from many publishers in all popular price ranges. All reading areas of interest to students will be represented, including classics, fiction, biographies, adventure stories, science, nature, crafts, mystery and reference books. Wonderful books to read or to give as gifts. The committee is working with Educational Reading Service, a professional book fair company, to furnish an individual selection of books for the fair. The school will receive 20% of all sales.

Their Job Was To Stay Put

By TOM TIEDE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. BAO TRI, Viet Nam—(NEA)—It was hot in the rice paddy. Itchy and uncomfortable. The platoon was buried in a foot of mud and, one by one, the men were being picked off by heavy enemy fire from the front.

No one wanted to stay there, of course.

But there they would stay, to do a job, all 35 of them. Lt. Jack Price, Oklahoma City, did what he could. He instructed his sergeants to move men forward when possible. He had his radioman keep touch with command. He requested all manner of support fire.

He could do little else.

And slowly his platoon was being murdered.

Bombers were on the way, however. Thank God for that. Tons of explosives that would scatter the enemy's front and open their defenses to penetration.

"Lord," he muttered, "if they'd only hurry."

He felt he could hear every man who was being hit. Sometimes there was a scream, sometimes a muffled gasp, sometimes only the silence of a rifle that before had been noisily at war.

"Lieutenant!" somebody cried.

"Yeah," Price answered, "I see them."

"Skyriders," another man added.

"Here they come."

"Give 'em hell, up there!"

A number of the platoon members were beyond caring, but those who were still able squinted up into the tropical sky to see the welcome streaks of friendly aircraft.

Prop planes they were. World War II models but highly effective in terrain that demanded microscopic accuracy. They flew in at high altitude and then began to dive sharply from the rear of the platoon.

As the bombs hit target, the men cheered.

But then, suddenly, the glee aborted.

Those who were still looking skyward could see a single silver cylinder falling straight for the platoon. A short bomb! A horrible mechanical error. The bomb release levers had broken loose prematurely and the TNT was falling gracefully, if grotesquely, toward the horrified GIs.

"Good God," the lieutenant screamed, "everybody down."

Faces buried in the earth. Fingers clenched agonizingly in the ooze. Minds ceased to function. Hearts stopped beating.

It hit just to the left of the platoon. The explosion was a nightmarish whump, only partly blanketed by mud. A great shower of ground erupted and scattered.

Then a cry broke the brief after-silence:

"Oh, no! It hit me."

"Hold on!" the lieutenant hollered, "I'm coming."

Price's eyes were stinging from heat and sweat when he reached the soldier, and he rubbed them roughly to clear his vision. It helped not at all. The man's face and neck had been shattered and he was unrecognizable even to his lieutenant.

Jack Price lifted the GI in his arms.

And there the man died.

The rest of the field was smoldering. Screams and groans, burned-away brush, twisted weapons, headless helmets; somebody nearby was calling for his mother; the paddy water was discolored with the blood of the wounded.

Price slogged from man to man to give aid.

But, doing so, he himself became the day's 27th victim.

At length the heat returned to the rice paddy and, thereafter, the itch and the discomfort. The platoon was still sunk in the mud and rifle fire again resumed from the front.

No one wanted to remain there, of course.

But there they would stay, to do a job, all eight who had survived.

Criticized Japanese Strategy

Adm. Nimitz Viewed Pearl Harbor As Act Saving Tens Of Thousands

EDITOR'S NOTE — Shortly before he died, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz gave a long interview to radio newsmen Fred Goerner in connection with a projected biography. The admiral stipulated that the material would not be used until after his death. This article, from a copyright story in the Napa, Calif., Register, presents the admiral's reminiscences of men and events of World War II.

Copyright Napa Register NAPA, Calif. (AP) — The late Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz thought Pearl Harbor was more a stroke of good fortune than a disaster — it may have saved tens of thousands of American lives.

He also considered that the Japanese passed up a great chance to invade and occupy Hawaii in the early stages of the Pacific fighting.

Nimitz conveyed these views to San Francisco broadcaster Fred Goerner of KCBS in talks prior to his death last Sunday of a stroke.

When asked "how disastrous" was the Pearl Harbor attack to the United States, Nimitz replied:

"Pearl Harbor was not a disaster to this country, but it could have been."

"No one regrets more than I the 3,000 casualties we suffered when Japan attacked Pearl, but had Adm. Husband Kimmel, then commander of U.S. forces at Pearl Harbor, received 24 hours' notice, he would have steamed with all of our forces to meet the Japanese task force."

Nimitz added:

"If the Japanese strategy had not been so inflexible, Nagumo might have struck at Pearl Harbor again and again. We had nothing to oppose him. He could have reduced the island to the point that a Japanese invasion would have been entirely feasible."

"No, Pearl Harbor was not a disaster. It awakened the American public as nothing else could have, and it convinced the Congress that sufficient money had to be appropriated to build a fleet capable of defeating the Japanese."

Here are other questions Goerner asked Adm. Nimitz, with his answers following:

— What do you consider the major turning point of World War II in the Pacific?

"There is no doubt about that. It was the attack on Pearl Harbor."

"We did not have one carrier available to contend with Adm. Nagumo's powerful carrier force, and the Japanese would have sunk every one of our ships in deep water."

"We would have lost 60,000 men, and nearly our entire Pacific Fleet."

Nimitz added:

"If the Japanese strategy had not been so inflexible, Nagumo might have struck at Pearl Harbor again and again. We had nothing to oppose him. He could have reduced the island to the point that a Japanese invasion would have been entirely feasible."

"No, Pearl Harbor was not a disaster. It awakened the American public as nothing else could have, and it convinced the Congress that sufficient money had to be appropriated to build a fleet capable of defeating the Japanese."

Here are other questions Goerner asked Adm. Nimitz, with his answers following:

— What do you consider the major turning point of World War II in the Pacific?

"There is no doubt about that. It was the attack on Pearl Harbor."

The Japanese cause was lost after the Battle of Midway in 1942. Her fleet, particularly the aircraft arm, never recovered from the damage we inflicted there."

— Why did you replace Adm. William Halsey with Adm. Raymond Spruance just before the Battle of Midway?

"I had to replace Halsey. He suffered from an ailment which attacked his nervous system. It got so bad just before Midway, that he had to be coated with ointment and wrapped in sheets." (Adm. William F. "Bull" Halsey died at 76 in 1959).

— What about President Truman's decision to drop atomic bombs at Hiroshima and Nagasaki?

"I agree with the decision. The attitude of the American people in 1945 would not have tolerated a continuation of the war when we possessed the weapon to end it."

"I feel deeply about the loss of life at Hiroshima and Nagasaki, but a U.S. invasion of Japan's home islands would have been 20 times as costly."

Philatelic Association Holds Monthly Meeting

The regular meeting of the Jacksonville Philatelic Association was held Tues. Feb. 22, at 7:00 p.m. at the home of Mr. Irving E. W. Olson. President C. G. Kirchhofer presided.

Secretary-treasurer Irving Olson read the minutes and treasurer's report. Mr. Olson was appointed to represent the club with the National Federation of Stamp Clubs.

Mrs. Karen Havlin was authorized to prepare a design for membership cards and secure bids for the printing of these, to present for action next month.

After the business meeting, a program on "Philatelic Firsts" was presented by Mrs. Havlin, followed by discussion and viewing of miscellaneous stamps by those present.

Mrs. Olson served refreshments.

125-Year History

Stamp collecting dates back about 125 years when the ladies in England started saving these colorful bits of paper to decorate their powder boxes and wastepaper baskets.

Over the years, the hobby has grown and flourished. Most of today's hobbyists can be placed in one of these categories: the first is the collector, who collects one each of as many stamps as he can acquire; second is the philatelist who studies postal history, printing methods, watermarks, cancellations, the story behind the stamp or anything else pertaining to stamps.

Topical collectors belong to this category for they must study their stamps to determine which does and which doesn't belong in their collection.

Third is the accumulator who gets anything and everything he can in any quantity. The collector who buys in hopes of making a profit belongs in this group. Most experienced collectors realize that the only certain profit to be gained from this hobby is the profit of pleasure.

Topical collecting is the trend of the times because the volume of different stamps being issued every year makes straight collecting prohibitive. Even those with the money to buy such a large volume don't have the time required to keep up.

Topical collecting can be either of two types. The more common is the collection in which every stamp depicts the same general subject such as boats, flowers, etc. Equally interesting, though, is the topical collection which tells a story such as the history of a country or the life of a famous individual.

Good planning makes a big difference when it comes to your family's future. With an estate of $150,000, for example, the "bite" for Federal Estate taxes can be reduced by $16,000 with a sound estate plan. In something as important as your will, good intentions are not enough. You need good advice, too, and the experience of people whose business it is to keep current on laws and taxation as they apply to estates. That is why it is important to discuss these matters with your lawyer and with one of the trust officers of Elliott State Bank.

Mac Matmen Cop 8-Team Tourney

LAKE FOREST — MacMurray wrestlers gained an unprecedented seven championships, here Saturday afternoon, to capture first place in the Lake Forest Invitational.

The eight-school meet saw the Clansmen total a record high 115 points on seven firsts, two seconds and a third, while Loras (Iowa) finished a far-out second with 85.

Highlander victors included Rich Johnson at 137, Ron Otto at 145, 142-pounder Paul Nelson, Gary Henning at 160, captain Pete Brann at 167, 177-pound entrant Syd LaMore, and heavyweight Bob Kellogg.

Two other individual titles could have been added to the Clan fold.

Already assured of the team crown before the final matches took place, coach Dave Camione elected to forfeit first place honors on the 130 and 191-pound classes.

The decision resulted from injuries to Ray Jast (130) and Wayne Schurter (191) suffered in early competition. Jast and Schurter had both captured first and second round wins, but did not compete in the finals, defaulting the crowns.

The win followed last weekend's triumph in the 19-team Wheaton classic, and served as a warm-up for the March 11-12 NCAA National Championships to be held at Mankato State (Minn.).

Including the high total point tourney record, the Clansmen garnered five team records during the event.

Best Point Total
The Highlanders' 115-point total lifted the Clans' season tally to 579 for their greatest season total in history, while 137-pound freshman Ron Otto set a MacMurray record by gaining 21 wins.

Heavyweight Bob Kellogg set two team records and tied another in the meet. A sophomore who tips the scales at 255, Kellogg rewrote the record books by recording a first round pin in 1:11, before gaining another pin in the second session action.

Kellogg's second fall broke Syd LaMore's season record of 10 pins.

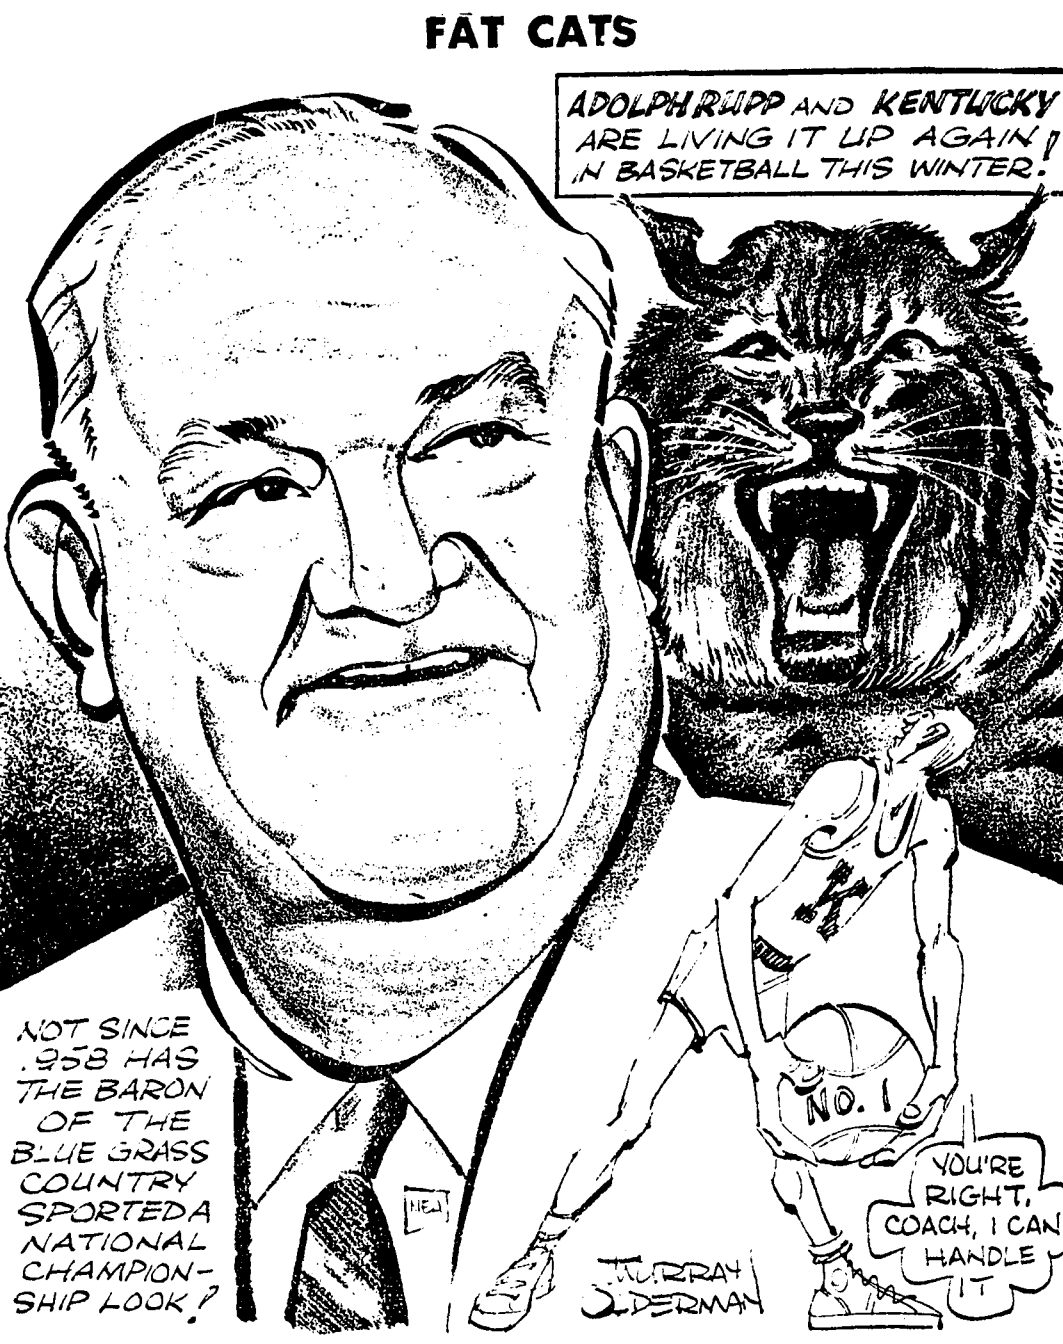

Freshman Tom Kolter gained seven more points for the Clansmen with a third place finish in the 115-pound class.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Quincy Friday and lists a 22-2 record.

Madison Major Hurdle looms as a major hurdle for the defending state champions in regional action. The Madison club brought off one of the season's big upsets Friday in a six-point victory over Benton and Elmhurst York, both undefeated, rank as the top threats for the crown but the road ahead is strewn with possible pitfalls.

York launches its drive Monday against Downers Grove in the Lombard regional.

Benton's first regional tilt is on Tuesday against Zeigler in the West Frankfort tournament.

In all, 480 teams will participate in the 60 regionals. The field includes 45 small school entries who advanced from district competition.

Thirty-eight regionals start Monday and the remaining 22 begin Tuesday. All of them end Friday, with the winners moving to the rugged sectional matches. The final rounds of the state championship will be run off March 15-18.

Harvey Thornton, one of a flock of strong contenders in the Chicago area, is host to its own regional beginning Tuesday. Thornridge, which handed Thornton one of its two losses this season, plays in the same tournament.

Powerful Galesburg is favored to pick up the Bushnell regional crown but Galesburg's regional defense is a threat.

Rockford West, another power, is the favorite in the Rockford regional despite the presence of Rockford Auburn. Since being seeded No. 1 in the pairings a month ago, Auburn began stumbling and has dropped two of

Attorney Maps Clay's Defense

CHICAGO (AP)—A defense of Cassius Clay's unsuitable apology before the Illinois Athletic Commission was mapped Saturday by the heavyweight champion's attorney, Edward Jacko of New York.

Jacko added force behind cancellation of the fight by saying: "The attorney general has issued an opinion holding the fight illegal. All state officials are bound by the opinion of the attorney general. It seems to me the commission has no other choice but to follow the opinion."

Trainer conceded Saturday that the commission was subject to the opinion of the attorney general but that the commission's final ruling on the matter will not be made until Monday.

Jacko said Clay had told him the meaning of a lot of words that the commission used in questioning him.

"For example," said Jacko, "I asked the champ if he knew the meaning of the word 'patriotic' and he told me that he had no idea what they were talking about when the commissioners asked him that."

Before the commission Friday, Clay was asked by chairman Joe Triner if he were apologetic for his "unpatriotic remarks" after being reclassified from 1-Y to 1-A.

Not Apologetic
"I'm not apologizing for nothing like that," Clay replied. "I don't have to. I'm the champ of the world."

Long after the commission meeting, Clay was located on a South Side street and told a reporter: "The only thing I'll say is that the fight will be held; not here, in some other city; if not there, in some other country; if not against Terrell, then against some other fighter."

The rug was jerked from under the fight mainly by Atty. Gen. William G. Clark. He told the commission the fight would violate the law on a legal over-sight in the make-up of the promoters' corporation.

He also cited another section of the Illinois code that states that among qualifications needed are "good and stable moral

Duke Captures 77-63 Triumph Over Tar Heels

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Second ranked Duke got its winning game operating in the second half to break open a close basketball game and trim North Carolina 77-63 Saturday in the final regular season contest for both Atlantic Coast Conference teams.

Steve Vacendak's 20 points, 19 by Bob Riedy and 17 by Jack Marin, made up for a six-point game by Duke's No. 1 scorer, Bob Verga. He took only six shots for three baskets against a season average of 20 points.

The victory gave Duke a 12-2 record as the top seeded Blue Devils go into the conference championship tournament Thursday at Raleigh, N.C.

Conference scoring lead, or Bob Lewis scored 24 points, and sophomore teammate Larry Miller hit 16 to lead the offense for the Tar Heels, whose ACC record dropped to 8-6.

Duke stepped up the tempo of its offense after five minutes of the second half and with 10 minutes to play led 56-41. Marin initiated the 24-point outburst with eight points.

3 Area Regionals Start This Week

At White Hall

The White Hall North Greene Regional which starts Tuesday is probably one of the better balanced in the state. Any one of the eight teams in the field have to be given a chance to cop the crown if past performance and season records are considered.

Four teams have better records than top-seeded Jerseyville, but the Panthers, being by far the largest school by enrollment in the field have met tougher competition overall and still rate as the team to beat.

Chief challenger to the favored Panthers (13-11) could be any one of four other squads: second-rated Pleasant Hill (19-4), third-seeded North Greene (16-6), fourth-rated Carrollton (15-7) or fifth-seeded Calhoun (16-5).

Action gets underway Tuesday with Jerseyville meeting weak Brussels at 7:00 and Carrollton testing Calhoun at 8:30. The Hawks tripped Calhoun in an earlier meeting.

At the same time Wednesday Pleasant Hill meets an improving Greenfield (5-16) outfit and North Greene takes on Southwestern (5-17).

Thursday night's semi-finals will be held at the same time, with the championship game beginning at 7:30 Friday. The winners will advance to the Jacksonville Sectional March 9, where that club will face the winner of the Jacksonville Regional.

At Pittsfield

Top-rated Pittsfield could get plenty of competition from four teams with .500 records or better in the Pittsfield Regional, which opens a five-day run on Monday.

The well-balanced field has five with even or better season records, with the host Saukees holding the best overall mark, 16-8, and with better competition under their belts.

Following Pittsfield in the ratings are Triopia (14-10), a team beaten twice by the Saukees, each time by small margins, Rushville (13-10), Brown County (16-8), Bluffs District winner Mt. Sterling 13, Mary's (10-12), not rated, Beardstown (6-15), Griggsville (12-12) and Meredosia (9-11).

Monday night action has Pittsfield meeting Meredosia and Brown County playing St. Mary's. Triopia tangles with Griggsville and Rushville tests Beardstown on Tuesday.

Monday's winners play in the only game Wednesday, with Tuesday's victors meeting Thursday. The finals will be staged Friday evening.

At Havana

If the bracketing holds true, the Havana Regional championship contest will be a re-match between top-ranked Mason City and second-seeded Petersburg, but at least two other clubs hold a good chance of moving through the pairings.

Mason City enters Tuesday night's action with a 20-3 slate, including an early season triumph over Porta by a 60-43 margin. The defeat came in Porta's first encounter of the year, however, before the second-rate Bluejays went on to compile 19-5, slate.

Momentum should increase their chances, as Porta has won their last nine games, and 14 of their last 15.

Greenview District champion Chandlerville, and Sangamon conference entrant Pleasant Plains are two other clubs that could very easily be heard from in the tourney.

Questionably rated second in the Greenview meet, Chandlerville rolled past Baki and the host club to gain the open spot at Havana, and run their season record to a lofty 21-6 status.

Although holding a less impressive 14-9 record, the Pleasant Plains unit is capable of providing stiff competition to the frontrunning clubs.

The Cardinals jumped off to a 9-1 record in early season action, but fell before tough conference opposition to end with their 14-9 over-all, and 4-4 local records.

Tuesday night's action will have Mason City vs. Astoria and Pleasant Plains vs. Chandlerville, while Wednesday evening has Porta vs. Manito For-man, and Athens vs. Havana.

Several times in the second half Ohio State came within a point of the lead but never could go ahead.

THOUGHTS ON CAGE SEASON

Thoughts and observations on the almost-completed prep basketball season:

We have never heard so many coaches around these parts who were displeased with the overall officiating this year. "Officiating has been below par in general, this year," is a common comment.

Why this feeling among coaches? We don't pretend to know the answer, but we can think of a few possible reasons. First of all, basketball at all levels, whether it be grade, high school, college or pro, is turning each year to more of a running game. Very few teams do not press full court at least half of each game, and most all outfits throw in an occasional fast break.

This is naturally going to lead to more whistles and more violations or turnovers of the ball. As for Illinois prep circles, the Chicago area schools have led this running trend in recent years, and its success is mirrored by that area's improved play in the state finals since Chicago Marshall first brought a "run and gun" outfit to Champaign and walked off with all the marbles in 1958.

This may be one reason for the coaches' displeasure, but all of the discontent does not always come over the number of fouls called. Often it is the type of foul called. A lot of this is due to the variation in officiating in Northern and Southern Illinois. This has been a common lament for several years, when a southern official works with one or two northern teams, or vice versa. Coaches are after a more uniform officiating code.

Let it be thought this corner is knocking officials, let it be understood that we are not. We could offer a list of several officials, local, area and otherwise who, we feel, turn in a real fine job. We personally know several for whose work we have great respect.

However, we have noticed a trend in the past few years that seems to indicate a few who do not, or cannot, keep up with today's fast-paced style of play.

This could feasibly become more pronounced in the future unless more young officials get into the business. As it stands now, it takes at least 3-4 years for a newcomer to work his way into a full varsity schedule, unless he knows the right people.

In looking back over the area prep season, one would have to say this has been something of an overall well-balanced season, with the emphasis on rebuilding. Of the 33 teams covered by this page, 19 currently hold better than .500 records. The way it looks now, no more than three or four will wind up with 20 wins or more, as compared to last season.

Whereas last season there was a larger than usual list of what would have to be classified outstanding individuals, the total this year can be counted on one hand.

Teams as a group this year seem to be shooting a better percentage. Due, we feel, to the lack of the real good outside shooters, forcing the teams to work the ball more for closer and better percentage shots.

Gopher Rally Ends Illini Hopes, 94-92

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The defeat ended Illinois' last hopes for the Big Ten championship, leaving both the Illini and Gophers with 6-5 conference records. Illinois, which had built a 13-point lead in the first half and was in front 44-33 at halftime, was in command at 69-55 with 11:34 left.

Ind. Central Raps MacMurray By 99-72

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Indiana Central broke away from MacMurray in the second half for a 99-72 conquest of the Highlanders, here Saturday afternoon.

Indiana Central caught the Highlanders shooting 30% from the field while the hosts ripped the nets at a blazing 51% clip. With Tom Cochran and Al Killoran combined for 21 points between them in the first half as the Clansmen stayed with two points of the hot Greyhounds with four minutes left. The eventual winners broke from there to a 45-34 spread at intermission.

The Greyhounds broke from halftime to a 61-41 bulge with 13 minutes left to win going away.

Phil Honnold led the winners with 20 points, as the Indiana club put ten players in the scoring column. Thirteen players placed 13 players in the scoring column, led by Cochran's 13 and Killoran's 12. Fred Lewis reached double figures with ten.

MacMurray is now 11-14 on the year, with one game remaining.

The Highlanders were forced to take three different buses on the trip, and the game started 45 minutes late.

Catching The Sleeper

When the pros get around to drafting the college basketball talent, the sleeper could be Larry Humes, a 6-5 forward from Evansville who is put right up there with Michigan's Cazzie Russell as a talent and definitely rated above ex-teammate Jerry Sloan, tapped by the Baltimore Bullets last year.

Jack Nicklaus is visiting Gary Player down on the farm in South Africa for a little hunting and fishing — quite a farm, with 260,000 pine trees alone.

At 18, Jim Ryan of Kansas is already the greatest miler this country has ever produced—a meticulous, deep thinker completely dedicated to track. Jim has kept a diary of his (Y) unning for the last four years, logging his personal reactions to the daily workouts. There's only one blank page in the entire book — the day last June he beat Peter Snell of New Zealand to win the National AAU mile.

Tom Laris of New England, who came from an eight-year slump to upset that other teenage prodigy, Gerry Lindgren, in a two-mile run, is another hard work devotee. He trudges in the snow before and after his job training program in Massachusetts. The hours are such that he's always running in the rain.

The new boss of the Chicago Bulls, expansionist team in the National Basketball Association, is Dick Klein, a hustling promoter who organized the deal. Klein is a former basketball and baseball player at Northwestern who pitched in the Cleveland farm system during the 1940s at Indianapolis. He also ran the hardwood for the old Chicago Gears, George Mikkelsen.

Rocketeers Request UN Assistance

JACKSONVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Members of a teen-age rocket club plan to appeal to the United Nations in an effort to find a launching site for their powerful home-made missile.

Inability to get a government agency to sponsor a firing of the three-stage rocket is forcing the club to look beyond the shores of the United States, a spokesman contends.

"It's a big step, but I guess a foreign government is our last hope if we're to find a site," said Dave Witte, 18, Jacksonville High School senior and president of the Morgan (county) Amateur Rocket Society (MARS).

Witte estimates the 12-foot tall rocket will travel 1,200 miles an hour and soar to an altitude of 60,000 feet.

Federal Tale of Woe
Officials at six U.S. government missile sites "have given us the runaround" for nearly two years, Witte said. They claim they are unable to provide sites for such a powerful rocket unless the group has a sponsor.

Witte said the group needs a missile range with a radius of at least 15 miles because the rocket has no destructive device in event of a malfunction. Letters are en route to U. Thant, U.N. secretary general, and U.N. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg informing them of the club's desire to find a launching site outside the United States.

The rocket club has launched about 40 smaller missiles on a 100-acre site south of Jacksonville, where the group has received clearance from the Federal Aviation Agency.

He was born at Pisgah June 30, 1893; son of William Henry and Emma Johnson Mosley. He was married Dec. 28, 1912 to the former Lula Stephenson, who preceded him in death July 23, 1961.

He leaves a son, Cecil E. Mosley of Divorson; two daughters, Avenael, wife of Richard Doty of Peoria and Mrs. Mabel Royer of Springfield; seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Also surviving are five brothers: Lloyd of Muscatine, Ia., Charles, a resident of Oregon, George of Franklin, Albert of Waverly and three sisters: Mrs. Lucinda Bingham of Richmond, Calif., Mrs. Florence Twyford and Miss Bessie Mosley, both of Jacksonville.

Gary Spangenberg To Receive Carnegie Award For Heroism

One of the nation's highest awards for heroism will be presented a Jacksonville man in ceremonies here Thursday.

R. Gary Spangenberg of 750 East Chambers will receive the Carnegie Medal, awarded by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission of Pittsburgh, Pa. for his act of bravery July 19, 1963.

On that date, Spangenberg, employed by the State of Illinois Water Survey Team, attempted to save two men who were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes in a well near Pittsfield.

Spangenberg was overcome by fumes and was hospitalized for several weeks following the incident. He is presently employed by District No. 117 as a teacher and coach at Jacksonville High School.

Samuel H. Shapiro, lieutenant governor, will represent Governor Kerner at the ceremonies, which will also include Dr. T. E. Larson, assistant chief, state water survey; John B. Stall, engineer, state water survey; John C. Watson, director, department of registration and education, and Hobart Hinderliter, president of the Kiwanis club.

The Kiwanis club is sponsoring the presentation of the medal. The ceremonies will be held at the Holiday Inn at the regular Kiwanis club luncheon meeting.

Not In Line Of Duty
The Carnegie award is presented those persons whose duties or jobs do not require them to perform such acts of heroism.

As in which the rescuer is related to the rescued by close family ties, or those performed while the rescuer is in the Armed Services, do not come within the scope of the fund.

Andrew Carnegie, industrial leader, steel magnate, and philanthropist, established the Carnegie Hero Fund in 1904 for the purpose of recognizing acts of heroism by awarding medals which often are accompanied by a monetary award.

The medals are awarded honoring deeds in which conclusive evidence may be obtained showing that the person performing the act voluntarily risked his life to an extraordinary degree in saving, or attempting to save another person, or sacrificed himself in an heroic manner for the benefit of others.

Two Lost Lives
Spangenberg attempted to save a fellow student James W. Rouston, 22, of Lombard, Ill., who lost his life in attempting to save a Pittsfield well digger, Cecil Callender, who also died in the mishap.

Rouston was awarded the Carnegie medal posthumously. Carnegie's primary purpose in creating the fund was to make provisions to give financial assistance to persons disabled in heroic efforts to save a human life, or to dependents of persons who lost their lives in this manner.

The incident that sparked Carnegie to initiate the award occurred January 25, 1904 near Cheswick, Pennsylvania at the Harwick Mine when 180 miners died in a gas explosion.

Shortly after the explosion several men who had not been in the mine when the blast occurred, volunteered to go in and try to rescue any survivors.

Only the name of one man was known. He was Dan Lysle, who entered the mine even though he knew it was filled with deadly gas, and brought out one man, the only survivor of the explosion.

But Lysle did not stop there. He went further into the mine to search for others, and it was then he was overcome and killed by the poisonous gas fumes.

The tragedy brought extreme sorrow and suffering to the families of the miners who were killed, and certainly to the family of Lysle, who had a wife and four children.

Not more than two months after the explosion occurred, the commission was formed, and a trust fund was established from which gifts of money could be given to the wives and families of men who were killed while trying to save the life of another.

Carnegie later specified that a medal, and a sum of money if it seemed desirable, be awarded to any man or woman, boy or girl, who voluntarily risked his or her life to save the life of another.

$10,000,000 Paid Out
As of July 1, 1965, the commission had awarded 4,918 medals accompanied by more than $10,000,000 in financial assistance to heroes or their dependents.

Most of the medals are made of bronze, although 594 silver medals and 19 gold medals have been awarded out of the above total.

Each medal measures three inches in diameter. A relief bust of Carnegie is on one side of the medal and on the other side is embossed the name of the rescuer with a brief description of his act.

The medal is enclosed in a block of clear lucite, approximately two inches thick.

Rowe Launches Bid For State Treasurer Here Saturday Night

State Representative Harris Rowe of Jacksonville Saturday night officially launched his campaign for the Republican nomination for state treasurer with a pledge to "help get new people working for the party."

Rowe spoke before some 400 friends from Jacksonville and surrounding counties at the Amvets club. He won statewide endorsement of the Republican party at a conference held in Springfield a month ago.

"The Republican Party is demonstrating today that it has a new sense of urgency about winning elections," Rowe stated, "that we are tired of fighting among ourselves."

Rowe pointed to the Springfield conference after which Charles Percy, Ray Page and he emerged as running mates for statewide offices.

"It is said that we have a two-party system, but in actuality we have a three-party system," Rowe said. "We have the Republicans, the Democrats, and the non-voters."

Non-Voter Worry
"In 1964 we had 35% of our people who did not even bother to register, or if they were registered, did not even bother to vote."

"This is an area that we, as Republicans, must tackle if we can expect to win elections here in Illinois, because statistics will show that over 60% of those who are registered but did not vote are living in Republican territory."

Here's an issue, "Rowe said, "that we cannot blame on the Democrats—we must blame ourselves if we do not get this vote out."

The launching pad for Rowe's campaign was sponsored by the Morgan County Young Republicans and special guests in-

Market Hog Contest In Woodson Tuesday, With Finals Mar. 8

Tuesday promises to be a big day for all persons interested in any phase of pork production.

It will be the beginning of the 3rd annual Pork Evaluation Day program put on by the Morgan County Pork Producers, and will be held at the Woodson Sales barn beginning at 9 a.m.

The morning hours will be devoted to receiving, sorting and branding the entries in the market hog show, and to a Sonray demonstration put on by Hank Deal of the Hunter Packing Co.

This technique uses electronics in an effort to determine the composition of the hog under the hide—how much lean meat, how much fat.

Market hogs entered in the contest will be judged in the afternoon, beginning at 1 p.m. The judges will be Dick Carlisle, of the animal science department, University of Illinois; Dick Simms, regional Extension livestock specialist, Macomb, and a hog buyer from the Hunter Packing Co.

The second phase of the annual program will be held in the 4-H building at the Morgan county fairgrounds the following Tuesday, beginning at 7 p.m.

At that time there will be detailed reports on the top winning hogs at the Woodson show, which will be taken to Hunter for slaughter, and there weighed and graded on the cooler rail. These details will be given to all persons attending the March 8 assembly.

The results will be interpreted by Sims, and Charles Jones of the Jones Meat Service, Jacksonville, will give the details of the carcass cut-out of the Sonrayed hogs.

There will be a door prize and the winners in both the on-hoof show and the carcass show will receive trophies.

Swine Council Chief To Speak In Cass

Jim Peterson, commercial pork producer from Vinton, Iowa, who is the president of the National Swine Growers Council, will be the speaker Thursday evening, March 10, at the annual meeting of Cass County Pork Producers.

It will be held at the Virginia Country club, beginning at 6:30 p.m. Dinner tickets may be secured from members of the Cass county association or at the Extension office in Virginia.

Donald Launer, president of the association, will preside. Peterson did not "grow up" in the hog business. He was a lumber dealer when his company bought an 80 acre farm to demonstrate some lines of portable hog housing and feeding equipment.

He says he found he liked hogs and within a short time disposed of his lumber interests and got into the hog business. He now markets about 2,000 head a year. He stresses close gilt selection and buys only top boars that have been performance tested.

Today Peterson is rated as one of the most effective spokesmen for the industry. He tells local, state and national organizations that when he is in the lumber business he learned the importance of merchandising and promotion in "moving" a product.

"Most hog producers today just don't see the point in promoting their product," he says. "In fact, many seem to associate promotion with something evil. But we are making progress. But pork is still moving along on steel wheels while other commodities are flying in

WHAT THE MAJOR NUTRIENTS DO:

The plant nutrients Nitrogen (N), Phosphorus (P) and Potassium (K) each do a different job within the plant—but some jobs they do together.

Nitrogen (N) is responsible for the dark green plant color, promotes vigorous, abundant leaf and stem growth, promotes early growth. Improves crispness and quality of leaf crops.

Phosphorus (P) stimulates early root formation. Gives rapid vigorous seedling growth. Hastens maturity and reproduction especially seed formation.

Potassium (K) increases plant vigor and disease resistance. Reduces lodging by helping make stiff stalks and stems. Makes seeds larger and of higher quality.

FROM THE CORN CRIB:

A particularly loathsome and belligerent man, given to profuse profanity, was an infrequent depositor at a bank.

One day in an unusually ornery mood he approached the teller's window and roared, "Where in hell do they keep the deposit slips now?"

The teller eyed him coolly. "I really don't know," she replied. "I have never been there. But we have ours on that desk right behind you."

Across the Fields and Furrows is brought to you daily at 12:25 P.M. on WLD 5 1180 on your dial by the people at Elliott State Bank.

LAW on the farm

ECONOMIC POISONS CLOSELY REGULATED

The historic skull and crossbones is still required on poisons, but many more requirements have been added in the past 10 years. With the development of hundreds of new pesticides, herbicides and other economic poisons, and their general use in agricultural production, laws and regulations have greatly increased.

All chemicals used to control insects, weeds, rodents, pest animals or plants must be registered and labeled in accordance with the economic poison law of Illinois. The State Department of Agriculture sets the standards for registration, and every economic poison must be registered in the state before it can be sold, unless it has been registered under federal law.

The State Department of Agriculture also has regulations on the sale of these poisons. Each one must be marked in the original unbroken container, labeled with the name of the manufacturer, brand, weight and content. The word "poison" and a skull and crossbones prominently displayed on a red label must be included if the material is highly dangerous to man. There must also be notation of an antidote for the particular chemicals involved.

Heavy Penalties
It is unlawful to sell economic poisons that do not produce the results represented when used as directed on the label. Strength or purity must not fall below the professed standard or quality as noted on the label. Any adulteration by adding foreign substances or taking out valuable ingredients is unlawful.

A fine of as much as $500 may be imposed for the sale of unregistered or misrepresented poisons. The penalty for violating the sales provisions of the economic poison law is the payment of a fine of $200 for the first offense and $1,000 for subsequent offenses. Any attempt to defraud the registration authorities about the chemical contents of any poison formula is punishable by a fine of $1,000 and a jail sentence of as much as one year.

Must Pass Test
Another Illinois law effective January 1, 1966, requires custom applicators of pesticides to be licensed by the state. Custom applicators must pass an examination on the proper use and application of pesticides, the dangers involved and the precautions to be taken.

A farmer is exempt from such licensing when applying pesticides on his own property or on the property of no more than two other farmers in one year. The purpose of the applicator licensing law is to reduce the number of cases in which the wrong chemical is used and to increase the probability that the proper strength will be applied. The law should produce a favorable impact on agricultural production and reduce wildlife and water pollution.

ILLINOIS OUTLOOK LETTER

WHICH WAY HOG PRICES?

We usually think of hog prices as rising the first half of the year. But when we check the figures, we find that prices went up only once in the past five years. That was last year, when they went up from $16.00 in January to $24.00 at mid-year.

After fluctuating around the $24.00 level for four months, hog prices jumped to $28.00 in November and have since held at about that level.

Biggest price-lifting factor was the extreme shortage of pork. Two other important elements were the very high level of consumer buying power and a limited supply of other red meats.

Less Pork. Commercial pork output in 1965 totaled only 10.7 billion pounds, 11 percent less than the year before. Much of the reduction was in the fourth quarter, when output was 20 percent less than a year earlier.

With less pork available, the supply lines ran low, bringing on higher prices for both pork and hogs.

Supplies of other red meats were limited in 1965. Commercial production of beef, veal and lamb totaled 19.9 billion pounds, only 1 percent more than in 1964. This increase was less than the increase in population and consumer buying power.

More Buying Power. Consumer buying power was at a very high level during 1965 and increased sharply during the year. By December personal income was flowing at the rate of $550 billion a year, up 7 1/2 percent from the year before.

Population continued to increase in 1965. By the end of the year the nation's population was 196 million, 3 million more than a year before.

Seasonal Decreases. Pork output usually decreases about 20 percent from January to July. But even this decrease has not been sufficient to bring a spring price advance in recent years. This year the decrease from January to July will be much less than usual—perhaps less than 10 percent. The smaller decrease in market supplies may be more than offset by the normal decrease in consumer demand for pork that comes with warmer weather. Thus it should not be surprising if hog prices were lower next summer than at the high time this winter.

According to the USDA Pig Crop Report compiled in December, sow farrowings began to exceed year-before levels in November, and farmers reported plans to increase farrowings in the December-February quarter 6 percent over those of a year earlier. Thus, beginning about June, market receipts of hogs may exceed those of 1965.

More Broilers. Supplies of competitive meats may be larger than they were last year. There may be little change in the output of the other red meats, but prospective supplies of broilers are around 15 percent larger than last year.

The increase in hog production seems likely to be slow, extending over two or three years. Many former hog producers have quit the business and most of them won't get back in. Many of the farmers who are still producing hogs are operating at full capacity.

In conclusion—we think that hog prices will trend downward during most of this year, but most of the decrease will come through 1967.

Arrange 25th Annual Shorthorn Show, Sale

The Illinois Shorthorn Breeders association celebrates the 25th anniversary of its state show and sale March 8, at the Illinois state fair grounds. Sixty purebred Shorthorns will be sold, 28 bulls and 32 females, consigned by 25 leading Illinois herds in what, for many years, has been the leading Shorthorn state sale.

The first sale, scheduled at the fair grounds in Springfield in March of 1942, was moved to Williamsville to the farm of Thorp Metz when the War Department took over the fair grounds. The first sale averaged $267.50 on 44 lots. In the 24 sales held to date 1,179 1/3 lots have sold for the very good average of $456, and have gone into all parts of the U.S. Only once has the top price dropped below four figures.

The show this year will be judged at 9 a.m. by H. Hollis Hanson, Shorthorn breeder of Connersville, Ind. Hugh James of Decatur, will be the auctioneer. The sale starts at noon.

Meeting of the association's various committees will be held at 2 p.m., March 7, and the annual dinner meeting will be held at 6 p.m., at the St. Nicholas Hotel, headquarters for the sale. Harris Simons, publisher of The Shorthorn World, Aurora, is sale manager, succeeding the late Don Longley, whose father, Hal Longley, co-founder of The Shorthorn World, managed the sales from their beginning until his death in 1961.

BRIMFUL Question? How Much Wheat Will Farmers Turn Under In 1966?

By Jim Brim

By OVID A. MARTIN
AP Farm Writer

Each year it seems costs go higher and returns lower. There is a profit squeeze. Economists say that 15 years ago a farmer needed a $2 gross to net $1. Ten years ago he needed $2.50 and now he needs at least $3 gross to net $1.

Here are some tips to cut costs and maintain output:

—Reduce some chores or field work. Do a study of how you use your time. Consider what changes you can make. Look at minimum tillage - it cuts costs.

Corn growers using minimum tillage and herbicides can expect to reduce costs $3 to $5 per acre, possibly more.

—Consider custom hire of some harvesting operations. You may not have enough acreage of some crops to justify the costs of owning the necessary machinery.

—Lower costs of beef and dairy feeding with urea.

—Concentrate on higher producing and more efficient animals.

—If you need a small amount of extra help hire a neighbor boy before or after school. It will be a help to you and to him also.

—Another way is to keep cost the same and increase receipts. This is more difficult, but consider.

—Get more for what you sell. Select your market carefully. Have good clean products of the type in demand. Look into growing specific crops.

—Keep fewer but higher producing livestock.

—Shoot for large litters of hogs.

If you would use it on 100 acres or more tons of hay a hay conditioner would probably pay for itself in three years.

The higher cost of diesel tractors over gasoline becomes profitable when the tractor is used 800 or more hours per year.

It is probably true that you must spend money to make money, but remember to do it wisely.

Now you should . . .
... Clean livestock beds.
... Watch for lice on hogs, and treat them.
... Check your physical condition.

... Feed the birds.
... Be sure Mom has a new spring hat.
... Clean out your medicine cabinet.

... Look for robins.
Economists tell us that grain farms will continue to increase in size. Grain - livestock farms also will increase in size, but not so much. Specialized livestock units will increase in number and volume of business—land units for these farms may not change.

If A equals Success, then the formula is: A equals X plus Y plus Z.

X equals Work.
Y equals Play.
Z equals Keep Your Mouth Shut.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Within a few weeks farmers in some areas may be found putting the plow to fields of wheat.

This, when there is starvation in the world and the United States is being called upon to supply more food. Such plowing up of wheat will be done under provisions of the government's crop control program. Agriculture Department officials say they expect the wheat to be turned under will be a small acreage.

Yet, officials agree that this action could arouse some criticism, in view of the world food situation.

Officials assert that the United States has an ample supply of wheat, although supplies have been cut in half since 1961 under influence of production adjustment programs and increased exports.

Reserve, Only
In fact, there no longer is a surplus of this breadgrain. All that remains is a reserve supply considered essential for protecting the nation against shortage that might result from drought or other emergencies.

In 1961 there was a reserve and surplus of 1.41 billion bushels, which was more than twice average annual domestic needs. But by last July 1 this supply had been cut to 819 million bushels. Last fall, the government predicted stocks would be down to 750 million bushels by the coming July 1.

But this latter forecast has been tossed aside because foreign requirements—particularly from starving India—have been greater than anticipated. Officials now are saying the stocks at the end of the 1964 crop year—July 1—will be down to around 650 million bushels. Some grain trade experts are predicting it will be smaller than that.

51 Million Acres
Wheat this year, as in previous years, is being grown under a government program designed to limit production. Growers have been assigned planting allotments which total about 51 million acres.

This program offers government price support loans and payments. But only those farmers who harvest within their allotments are eligible for these government benefits.

These benefits include a price-support loan averaging $1.25 a bushel nationally, marketing certificates expected to average at least $1.25 a bushel on 45 percent of the projected yield of their allotment, and, if they choose, payments averaging drums around $13.50 an acre on be-

This request is being made by the government to help make this year's crop a little larger than it otherwise might be.

Depending on the size of 1966 production, the government is expected to offer growers larger planting allotments for the 1967 crop. Officials do not want the reserve supply to fall below 600 million bushels.

THEIR CALLS
The pheasant crows, but the ruffed grouse, which often is wrongly called a pheasant, chooses, payments averaging drums by beating its wings against the ground.

Let's Go Birding

Chataqua Wildlife Refuge

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Some of us make an annual pilgrimage, so to speak, to the Chataqua National Wildlife Refuge as nearly after New Year's Day as possible to find the Bald Eagle for our new year's list of birds. As yet we have never failed in our quest, nor did we on January 3, 1966: we immediately saw three of our national bird with their white heads and tails glistening in the sunlight as the great dark eagle forms maneuvered along the edge of the frozen bay for food.

January 3, as you may recall, was a zero-weather day following a very cold night. We knew this as we hiked on along the sandy road leading us farther into the Refuge. The vegetation and bases of trees were draped in ice formations reminding us of stalactites and stalagmites in caves.

The expanse of water on either side was locked in a great sheet of snow-white ice that was cracking, booming and sizzling in the sudden cold. We, however, were not uncomfortable; for there was no wind, and the sun shone directly upon us.

Geese Honk
While moving slowly along, we watched and listened for any birds that might be feeding along the way or flying from one part of the frozen Refuge to another in search of water and feed. We heard the musical honking of Canada Geese announcing their approach and admiring the V-formations and the line-formations of these large dark birds, with their white cheek patches and light-colored breasts glowing in the sunlight as they moved directly over our heads. We heard the familiar quacking of Mallards and some Black Ducks and saw flocks of them shading the clear blue sky.

Then our attention was drawn to Cedar Waxwings feeding on the little red fruits of the multiflora rose hedge. Some were lined close together sunning themselves on the bare tree branches near the hedge. On the end of one branch sat a waxwing, larger and grayer than its companions. It proved to be a Bohemian Waxwing, a species not included on the Refuge check-list.

Ice-Cheeked Water
When we came to the place where the road and embankment sank out of sight under the ice-cankled running water, and the two great bodies of frozen water had become one, we halted with the remark that we had never seen the water in this part of the Refuge so high. Where we had always seen Bald Eagles and ducks there was only ice. The vegetation on either side of us was festooned with glittering icicles, and the hollowed side of the embankment had become a cave of ice. To our astonishment into this icy cave dropped a flicker, a mercurial place for any kind of bird let alone this type of woodpecker. Soon it flew into a small tree in full view before us.

To our greatest astonishment we saw, not our eastern Yellow-shafted Flicker, but the Red-shafted Flicker in the West and only rarely as far east as the Great Plains.

Its whiskers were red, not black; its wing- and tail-linings were red, not yellow. Again we had added a new bird to the check-list of the Chataqua National Wildlife Refuge. With pride we reported our two finds to the manager.

Maybe 'Jawing' Gave It Name Of 'Jawbone'

By PAUL M. DUBBS
State College

Centre Daily Times
STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — They call the place the "Jawbone," maybe because it's an easy name to remember, or maybe because "jawing" is its main purpose — to encourage students and other visitors to talk freely.

Actually it's a coffee house located in an outworn residence a block off the Pennsylvania State University campus. It was opened three years ago by the Penn State Lutheran Student Association and has been gaining in popularity ever since. Most of the people who go there don't know it is church-affiliated.

The men and women — mostly students and faculty — who frequent the Jawbone may be Protestant, Roman Catholic or Jewish. They may be Moslems or Atheists. It makes no difference.

The aim of the student association is to provide a place for informal discourse. And informal it is.

The Jawbone occupies the first floor of the building, which has been enlarged by enclosing a front porch. The lighting is by candles stuck in bottles, or well-shaded electric fixtures.

A sizeable hamburger grill in one corner of the former parlor goes full tilt. A hood and small exhaust fan fight a losing battle with clouds of smoke from the grill.

Visitors sit around tables sipping coffee, tea or soft drinks and eating sandwiches and snacks, which are sold on a donation basis. The menu suggests the amount of contribution for various items and cautions: "Only your honesty shall keep us open!" There are seats for about 100 persons.

All the help are volunteers, except the man on the hamburger grill. The big nights are Friday and Saturday from 8 to 12. This year Wednesday night sessions were added to encourage faculty members to attend.

There is no entertainment Wednesdays and the grill is closed. On weekends, some entertainment is scheduled ahead of time, like folk-singing, poetry, satire, drama, readings or speakers. They're limited to two 20-minute periods so as not to cut down on the conversation.

Anyone is welcome to use the "open microphone" anytime to air his views. There also are displays of student art and sculpture, which can be purchased, and are changed every several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Chittick supervise, operating on the theory that what governs least governs best. Chittick has a year to go at the Lutheran School of Theology in Philadelphia and is serving his internship with the campus ministry staff.

Asked how the coffee house ties in with religion or a church program, Chittick said he felt the answer was that many young folks have found conventional church programs lack some things people need. The Jawbone is an attempt to supply part of that need through providing a place where they can speak out.

Could Flu Outbreak Happen In Space?

By RONALD THOMPSON
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP)—An influenza outbreak in space?

It could happen. The flu bug, or any of its infectious virus friends for that matter, can strike an astronaut just as easily as it can the next man.

Astronauts could unknowingly carry the virus into space, a hostile environment where razor-sharp control of a spacecraft is essential to survival.

With this in mind, the space agency has awarded a $38,000 contract to the U.S. Public Health Service to determine the best approach to control and early diagnosis of viral infection in astronauts on a flight.

Doctors at the Manned Spacecraft Center agree that it is not a question of can an astronaut be infected by a virus while in space, but rather can it be prevented.

"It is possible we might start a flight with a man in the pre-clinical stage of some viral infection," Dr. Walter Kemmerer, the center's monitor on the virus control study, said in an interview. "We want to have techniques to enable us to prevent this from happening, and to detect that it is happening," he added.

"Also, we want to know how to prevent one astronaut from transmitting it to another inside the spacecraft."

The chances of a virus striking an astronaut will increase when flight crews get larger.

Just what would be done—whether the mission would be ended—will depend largely on the seriousness of the illness and how far the ship was from earth, Kemmerer said.

While in earth orbit, the spacemen could be rushed home for medical treatment in a relatively short period of time, but on excursions of several weeks or months to other planets, they would be forced to be their own doctors, while receiving instructions from medical men monitoring flight from earth.

No American astronaut has reported even so much as a slight cold in space.

Air Force Col. Frank Borman, command pilot of the 14-day flight of Gemini 7, caused some moments of concern last December when he sneezed while in orbit. It was called by some "the sneeze heard around the world."

Doctors monitoring the medical data beamed back to earth from Gemini 7 quickly checked Borman's condition, and detected no sign of impending illness.

Kemmerer said that the virus control contract calls for a final report within a year.

Maybe you won't believe this, knowing me as I am, but I was canned off that job in less than two weeks for being caught sleeping on the job two mornings in a row. It's the only job I was ever fired off of, and I am glad I was, for if I had stayed in that town I'd be dead long ago.

Getting back to me and Virgil and the dice game, I haul out a half-dollar and throw it on the velvet-covered change counter. Virgil threw down his two checks, total value a little above $22,000. He took his dice, rattled them good, threw them through the air, bounced them off the velvet backboard, and came up snake-eyes.

I said: Observe and lament. He said: Double up to beat the craps.

I said: Yours very truly, proceed at your peril.

Gosh, this story is getting away too long, again. But you get the idea of how Pete won and lost $12,288, and was glad he did. I'll finish the story some day.

— Cecil Tendick

ON THE FASHIONABLE COLORED HATS — "Deary me," said old Mrs. Guy, "why nowadays all the young gals is light headed."

Conceited people are always happy, they do so enjoy themselves.

When it is useless to try to borrow a book? When it is Lent.

The following story is told of a father of a church. At an association dinner a debate arose as to the use of the rod in bringing up children. The good doctor took the affirmative, and the chief opponent was a young man whose reputation for veracity was not high. He maintained that a parent often do harm to their children by unjust punishment, from not knowing the facts of the case.

"Why," said he, "the only time my father whipped me was for telling the truth." "Well," retorted the doctor, "it cured you, didn't it?"

Artemus Ward tells a good story concerning the production of the Lady of Lyons at the Salt Lake City theatre: "An aged Mormon actor and walked out with his twenty-four wives, angrily stating that he wouldn't sit and see a play where a man made such a cussed fuss over one woman."

Louis Napoleon has taken a fancy to a span of superb black horses driven by Mr. Way of Boston, which are creating a sensation in Paris. Mr. Way is the envy of all fanciers of all degrees, when he emerges from the porte cochere of the Grand Hotel, to display his hot bloods in the Champ Elysees and in the Bois de Boulogne. The Emperor has sent to know if Mr. Way could be induced to part with his horses, and at what price; but as yet their owner is unmoved, and prefers his horses to the honor of pleasing his majesty.

Probably the largest spring in the world is one in the center of Huntsville, Alabama, from which a stream of water follows sufficient to float a 30 ton bateau. It is an object of great interest to the people and visitors.

Thieves have discovered a new use for chloroform. The pokers near Adrian, Mich., disappeared in a most unaccountable manner, and what was regarded as strangest, they were carried off without the sound of a single squeal. A gentleman, however, discovered the dealers operating one night, and going to the pig-pen, he found two fat hogs lying helpless and unconscious, having been drugged with chloroform.

In Memphis every hotel is crowded, and so is every boarding-house; and the renting of a house, or even a suite of rooms, for a small family, is next to impossible. Small, unfurnished rooms, on the third floor, rent readily for $25 to $30 a month.

An Oregon paper says enough liquor has been sent across the mountains to keep every man in Montana drunk all winter.

Brigham Young has purchased two of the Sandwich Islands, to which he proposes to move, bag and baggage.

Of the 9,000 post-offices in the disloyal States, about 2,000 have received post-mistresses, because no man could be found who could take the oath that he had not borne arms against his country. The ladies, though rebellious in spirit, are able to take the prescribed oath.

Lewis Fisher, a fresco painter, fell a distance of twenty-five feet, in one of the Chelusa, Mass., churches, while at work, a few weeks ago, and received injuries which has disabled him for life. The trustees of the church lately sent him a bill of seven dollars and sixty cents for damage sustained by the pews on which he fell. So says the Springfield Republican.

counter, where I could place the change in case of any unhorn — not precisely including present company — could pick up his change in case any of you spent something.

Lots of people can't believe that such a little town as Manchester, N. H., has the biggest cigar manufactory in the U.S.A. But it's so. I saw it.

It is certainly no place for a man with roughish blood in his veins.

Right after I left New Jersey I went up to Manchester to case the place. I saw all the men in town, maybe 500-600 of them, going to work at 7:45 a.m., with their dinner buckets on their arm, leaving their women folks bereft and lonely for at least 11 hours, figuring the going and the coming.

So, I sized up the situation right away, and got a job night

Pete said: "I'll get to it directly, but anyway you peer at it, from A to Z and all the way back, it ain't an every day occurrence for a man to lose $12,288, and be glad about it."

"And it happened to me yesterday."

Pete lounged back in his massive quarter-sawn oak rocking chair, which his ever-loving wife had gotten for him by buying her groceries on the Larkin plan. He tugged at one end of his walrus mustache and gazed around to view his combination tobacco, confectionery and billiard saloon.

A Concise Account

Pete said: I shall now recount the events as briefly as possible. I'm never one to string things out, which is more than I can say about some people, present and absent.

Well, yesterday morning, I guess it was around 8 o'clock or so, I was just tidying things up around the place when in comes Virgil Lenter. You know him. If you don't you ought to, because he is quite a personality, what with his good looks and pompadour hair, and them tight yellow low-cuts what button on the side, and him marrying that good looking girl in Decatur whose papa owns pretty near every grain elevator on the I.C. railroad between Latham and Evansville, I-N-D.

Have you seen that big car she bought him a couple of weeks past? It's a Moon. It stretches from here to the courthouse square and the head lamps are bigger around than a cider barrel. In the back end there's a couple of cut glass vases, where you could stick flowers if you were a mind to.

Well, yesterday morning, just as I was tidying up the place with my feather duster, say, did I ever tell you about my feather duster, which is made of the tail feathers of peacocks revered by a cannibal tribe in darkest Africa?

Wild Wind said: Only a thousand times or so.

Pete smiled benignly and continued: Well, Virgil came to town in his big Moon machine, which stretches from here to the courthouse square. He said his father-in-law had gotten him up early in the morning to come to Narita and Latham and pick up two checks for wheat shipments. He showed them to me — they added up to just a little over $22,000.

No Action In Town

So Virgil walks around a little, nervous like, and said: "I'd like to shoot some craps, gamble a little, and there's nobody here except you and me."

So I said: Virgil, I promised by dear mother long ago that I would never shoot craps. But she didn't say anything about fading.

That reminds me. You all know Conrad Erlenbusch, the old soldier who drank a little too much from time to time, and who had the D.T.'s in tints, red, blue, purple, green and so on, and got shipped to the Soldier's home in Quincy about a year or so back?

Well, the pill rollers got him straightened up pretty well and the wheel there wrote our mayor and said Conrad could be released and come home if the mayor would see to it that he didn't drink any whisky or beer.

So, Mayor Danner practically wears himself out going to the 13 saloons in town and telling them they couldn't sell Conrad any beer or whisky. The proprietors, all gents, agreed.

But when Conrad got home he explained to the proprietors that although the wheels in Quincy shut him off beer and whisky they didn't say anything about wine.

So now he's the biggest wino in town.

Just Bank Them!

Now getting back to Virgil and how I lost $12,288 yesterday.

Virgil says: Your dice or mine?

I said: My dear mother always said any man's dice are O.K., just as long as he banks them.

Well, I've got a velvet covered tray up on the cigar counter that the people in Manchester, New Hampshire, sent me free, gratis and for nothing. They are the biggest cigar house in the country and they call that velvet-covered tray a change

News, Views Century Ago

From the Jacksonville Sentinel:

JACK MALONE—We had the pleasure a few days since of seeing the above noted Turi horse, now the property of our fellow townsman, Jno. C. Kelly, Esq. He was sired by the world renowned Lexington, and is out of the celebrated turf mare, Gioriana. The horsemen of Morgan and adjoining counties are fortunate in having within reach a horse of such high pedigree as Jack Malone, as we presume friend Kelly will let him to a limited number of mares the present season.

THE COMING CHARACTER ELECTION—We do not know how party lines will be drawn in our coming town election. The advocates of license will probably make no effort to elect a license ticket, the saloon keepers being most satisfied with the present "situation," the Maine law policy having proved a dead failure, and fines hard to collect—no license to pay.

From the Carrollton Gazette:

The signs are good for a large increase in manufacturers this year in Carrollton. This is what builds up a town more than anything else.

That "big well" at the depot has been a tough knot for the contractor, who was to get $300 for the work, and has already expended $400, we are told.

On Friday morning the construction and section hands of the St. Louis, Jacksonville & Chicago R.R. struck on account of the proposed reduction of their wages from $2 to $1.50 per day. In consequence the work has ceased until the parties come to terms.

There seems to be a great deal of emigration to Missouri from this place and vicinity.

300 Squatters Winter On Old Reservation

MECCA, Calif. (AP) — Bro-Joan, 21, and their two children have been living in a 1956 station wagon for weeks.

"We came down from Stockton (Calif.). The car is our home, everything we own, except for the old mattress, a couple of blankets, the rags on our backs, the crate of potatoes and a quart of milk for the baby," Catron explained.

"I make $25 a week in the fields. I've looked all over for a job. I never went to high school, but I am a good mechanic's helper. I can't find work," Catron said.

Phil Sigley, 24, his wife Lola, 27, and their two children, came from Medford, Ore.

"We made our house in three days from stuff we found at the Coachella dump," Mrs. Sigley said.

The Rev. Melvin McIntyre, a Baptist minister, and his wife, Duffie, said they have lived in Box Canyon for several months.

"We're camping on Indian land," Mrs. McIntyre said.

"Only no one knows where the Indians are that own the land. That's why we haven't been chased out of here."

Around the McIntyre trailer are 25 trunks and boxes which he said contain his theology library. He said his last pastorate was in Wellfleet, Neb., two years ago. He said he sometimes preaches to the squatters.

"But most of them are running from God and want to be left alone. They have no hanker for my preachin'," he said.

Principal Murray Southard of the Mecca Elementary School said, "We opened our doors to the squatter children. We figure those people are living there. Their children should go to school."

Ralph Catron, 22, his wife,

Oasis In the City

New York is soon to have something new in the way of parks — set in the heart of Manhattan but shut off from the noise and bustle of the city. Pioneering a new concept in utilizing small areas as quiet, green oases in crowded cities, the park will occupy only 42,000 square feet on the site of a once famed night spot, the Stork Club, now closed and to be demolished. Locust trees will provide a foliage canopy. Side walls of gently rounded concrete arches set with brick and occasional mirrored paneling will shut out the city while contributing a sense of spaciousness. Scale model view at top shows the park from the 53d Street entrance. A waterfall, bottom, fronting the rear will replace traffic noises with a pleasant, relaxing sound background. The park, being built and donated to the city by William S. Paley, Columbia Broadcasting System's board chairman, will be named Samuel Paley Plaza in honor of his father.

Administrator of REA said recently.

Addressing the 24th annual meeting of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association in Las Vegas, REA administrator Norman M. Clapp said, "These are days of difficult decisions. As a nation we face the hard choices involved in meeting both our commitments to freedom abroad and progress at home."

Face "Hard Realities" Clapp said that the rural electrification program is "already facing the hard realities of the task to which we are committed as a nation. We are facing them in the problem of REA financing."

He referred to the federal budget for fiscal year 1967, presented to Congress last month, which proposes a level of $270 million for the REA's two per cent electrification loans. Clapp said this level is "based on the expectation that the basic two per cent REA loans provided for in the budget will be needed to provide only part of the total financing available to the electric program next year."

One possibility for a supplemental financing plan, the REA administrator said, is the result of two years of study by NRECA and its members.

May Seek Legislation If approved, the systems will seek legislation this year to create a federal bank for rural electric systems in the Department of Agriculture to make loans to supplement — not replace — the present REA two per cent loans.

A plan along these general lines, if enacted, could provide sources of financing outside the federal budget. Clapp emphasized, however, that the new bank would have to offer interest rates low enough to make the loans usable, provide greater flexibility in the use of loan capital than is possible with the present REA two per cent loans, and channel increasing amounts of private capital into the program.

Utah's Rainbow Arch is the largest natural bridge in the world. This vari-colored span is so lofty that the Capitol at Washington could be placed under it without touching the underside of the arch.

REA Head Sees Supplemental Financing Ahead

The administration is prepared to work with rural electric systems in developing a proposal to utilize sources of capital outside the federal budget to supplement its two per cent loans from the Rural Electrification Administration, the ad-

SWINGING COURT — Detroit's Traffic and Ordinance Court went a-go-go taking—or viewing—evidence on a charge that a discotheque operator was "allowing immoral, vulgar, suggestive or freak" dancing at his establishment. Swinger for the defense, dancer Karen Lynn Davidson, 22, obliged the court with demonstrations of seven dances performed at the club. Decision was deferred. (NEA Telephoto)

Booze Hounds Don't Get 'Hair Of Dog'

By FRANK S. JOSEPH hair of the dog that bit him. CHICAGO (AP) — When a drunken dog reels into Dr. Harpottle's office, the veterinarian does not prescribe the travenous fluids — and sympthy," Boothe says. "In the acute stages, you pump his stomach — and, of course you cut off his source of supply." That, Dr. Boothe said in an interview, is the same treatment given to a human alcoholic. But he said it is easier to break a canine boozehound of booze than a human because "basically, the dog is not voluntarily an alcoholic — somebody helped him get hooked."

Dr. Boothe made his comments Tuesday while attending the Illinois State Veterinary Medical Association convention, of which he is convention chairman. The 44-year-old veterinarian said he has seen enough alcoholic dogs to know that while the problem is rare, it exists. When he practiced near Chicago's night life district, he said, he saw a number of boozy pooches — "I have seen several dogs hung over, too, and it is a sight to behold with their blood-shot eyes" — and that they were frequently in the company of alcoholic masters.

His theory is that the insecure master with an alcohol problem uses his dog as a combination drinking buddy "when there's nobody else around to drink with" and as an extension of himself. "He thinks his dog is as mixed up as he is," Dr. Boothe said.

WHITE HALL'S WEEKLY PAPER TO CHANGE LOCATION

WHITE HALL — White Hall's weekly newspaper, the Register-Republican, will soon move to its new location on Sherman street, just off Main street. The site was formerly occupied by the Smother's pool room. There will be no interruption in service.

The building being vacated by the newspaper has been purchased by F. M. Search, who operates the local IGA supermarket. Mr. Search plans to enlarge his market to include the building to the south. John Ridings who operates a dry goods store on Main street has purchased the building to the north of his store and will remodel the building for added space to his store.

HANDLING HOT CARGO

before a strike. A loading team positions a bomb on a wing mount, lower left. Final ticklish step, lower center, comes as an ordnance man attaches the fuse to the mounted bomb. Now loaded for death and destruction, a jet fighter-bomber takes off with a roar from the Ticonderoga's deck on its mission over enemy territory.

Crimson Rally Nets 55-51 League Win

DECATUR — Gary Ginder broke out of a long scoring slump to spark Jacksonville to a 55-51 Capital Conference triumph over Decatur MacArthur, here Friday night, as the Crimson came from 11 points down in the first half to rip off 17 straight points in the second half in their final regular season game.

JHS won its first regular season game on the road by putting up a strong rally in the second half. Ginder, in a scoring drought for the past month, threw in 23 points to lead the way as the Jacks ran its record to 13-11 with a 4-4 league mark.

Down by 11 points midway in the second half, due mainly to a spurge of turnovers caused by the MacArthur full-court press, the Crimson came to life with eight straight to get within 27-22 at intermission.

After falling down by nine early in the third round, Ginder, Ron Coleman and Bob Donovan, another leader in the comeback effort, sparked a Crimson surge that blew the host Generals right off the floor before it ended.

Jacksonville counted the final 11 points in the third quarter for a 41-36 bulge entering the final eight minutes, then notched the first six in the fourth for a 47-36 difference that was only mildly threatened in the remaining time.

Hot 3rd Period Lifts Greenfield To 72-55 Edge

GREENFIELD — An earlier unsuccessful press paid off in the third quarter here Friday night as Greenfield maneuvered to a 72-55 conquest over Franklin via a 23-7 advantage in the decisive frame.

Greg Koehn, who paced the victors with 16, collected nine in the third round, while teammate Rick Goodman added seven to bring the locals to a 52-32 spread at the third turn.

Greenfield had led at the half by only 29-25.

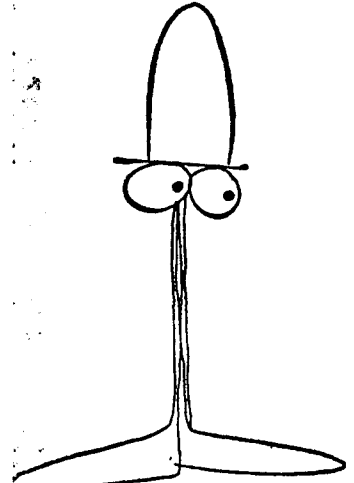

Fast-break opportunities in the third frame aided the local Tigers' shooting clip for the game, ending the contest at a range at a 35% average.

The triumph leaves Greenfield with a final season slate of 5-16, while the visiting Flashes now rate 7-13.

Clan Ends Hoop Year On Road

MacMurray's basketballers take to the road this weekend for a two-game jaunt that will finish the season for the Highlanders.

The Clan travels to Indianapolis for an afternoon encounter with Indiana Central College on Saturday, Feb. 26. Central has a 14-7 season record, 8-2 in their league — good for a runner-up position, and appears to have one of the best small-college quintets in the Hoosier State. The game is scheduled for 3:30 p.m.

The Highlanders wind up the season with a game on Monday night, Feb. 27, against Washington University of St. Louis in the Bear Lair.

MacMurray will be out to add to their season record of 11 victories. The away trips have not been the Highlanders' most profitable ventures recently. The Clan dropped two games in their Chicago swing, losing to Lewis 103-89 and being slowed by the University of Chicago's Maroons 77-72.

In a close game until the final minutes, Mac was defeated by the Hawks from Quincy Tuesday evening, Feb. 22, 87-74. This was the Highlanders' last home game and brought their record to the present 11-14.

The most consistent performer for the Highlanders has been Springfield's Tom Cochran. He has been high scorer in seven of the last eight games and has given a solid accounting on the boards.

Noted Sportsman Jim Norris Dies

CHICAGO (AP) — Multimillionaire James D. Norris, who preferred running a boxing empire rather than a railroad and winning the Stanley Cup rather than a Kentucky Derby, is dead at 59.

Norris, whose personal holdings were valued at $250 million, died early Friday in Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital from a heart condition which first developed a decade ago.

A strapping, darkly handsome man, Norris was a business tycoon of a giant stature but enjoyed best his role as co-owner of the Chicago Black Hawks and owner of the Spring Hill Farms racing stable.

Senior guard Bill Collins added 20 more for the victors, while John Lyons topped Greenview with 27.

CROWNED HIMSELF

At the moment when the Pope was about to crown him, Napoleon Bonaparte took the crown off the pontiff's hands and placed it on his own head.

Clan's Lewis Keeps District Free Toss Lead

CHARLESTON, Ill. — Millikan University freshman Jesse Price holds a firm scoring lead with but a handful of games remaining in District 20 (Illinois) of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Price has boosted his point average to 25.3 per game to hold off challenges by Rick Schwab of Eureka College and Leroy Harwell of Western Illinois, both standing at 21.8.

Final statistics will be released after all post-season tournaments are completed. Four District 20 clubs will enter a playoff next week to qualify for the national tourney at Kansas City.

Field goal and free throw percentage races are hotly contested, with Ron Matkitis of McKendree and Fred Lewis of MacMurray holding the leads. Matkitis has hit .538 from the floor, and Lewis .883 from the foul stripe.

Duane Szymkowski of Lewis, his season cut short by injury, still leads in rebounding but is being challenged by Matkitis. Price, now averaging only one rebound less per game.

Five different clubs lead team categories. Lewis is scoring 90.2 points per game. North Park has a defensive yield of 67.0. McKendree is averaging 480 in field goal attempts. Greenville .742 in free throw attempts, and North Central 59.6 rebounds per game.

FBI Captures Brown Escapee In Idaho Town

A Ripley, Ill. man, who escaped from the Brown county jail at Mt. Sterling January 5, was being held at Priest River, Idaho following his arrest by FBI authorities.

Robert Gebhardt, special agent in charge of the Springfield division of the FBI, identified the man as Tilford Raymond Bowman, 22, of Ripley.

Bowman was taken into custody Thursday at Priest River, and charged with unlawful flight to avoid confinement.

He escaped from the Brown jail after he and two other persons admitted being involved in burglaries in Mason, Schuyler, Brown and McDonough counties.

The other two persons were identified as Bowman's brother, James Bowman, 22, of Ripley and Velma Faye Prather, 22, of Rushville.

Gebhardt said that after Bowman was arrested Thursday, he was arraigned before a U.S. commissioner and is presently being held under $1,000 bond.

Gebhardt said that a federal warrant was obtained by the FBI on January 10 after Bowman fled the state.

The other two persons were not involved in the escape.
